Forum of Integral Ecology: Sustainability and Common Good in Latin America,
Universidad Iberoamericana Mexico City

Meeting in the Context of the IBERO Common Good Week, 12 November 2024

Target

The Forum of Integral Ecology: Sustainability and Common Good in Latin America seeks to analyze, from a conceptual and empirical perspective, the scope and challenges of integral ecology in Latin America. It is based on some questions such as: How is integral ecology understood? How important has this paradigm become in Latin America? What implications does it have as a conceptual framework in research? How important is it as a guiding framework for actions in protections of the land? What is its relevance in the formation of the next generations? How do different communities incorporate integral ecology into their strategies, practices, and mobilizations? What are the theoretical and practical intersections between Integral Ecology and the Common Good?
